MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 4.—Alabama has already executed project agreements with the federal government for the construction of highways to cost $4,126,157.42, of which amount the federal government will put up $2,740,475.60, according to records of the federal bureau of public roads for the southeast here. This means that funds have been set aside at Washington for the general government's share of the cost and that work will be started after all plans have been completed and contracts let.

Georgia is leading the southeast in the amount of money obtained under project agreements. Georgia has received or will receive from the federal government $5,563,125.24 and will spend $12,214,791.09 on its public road system, according to the same records. Project agreements totaling $34,831,218 have been executed between the six states composing this road supervision district and the federal government. Of this total amount, the federal government will contribute $16,259,710.98.

LONDON, March 4.—The result of the German cabinet's deliberations on the indemnity situation is hopeful, it was announced by the German delegation today. The cabinet is backing up Dr. Walter Simons and head of the delegation in London.

"The ministry is already considering due forms of taxation and it is most likely that we shall be authorized to present a new indemnity offer to the allies on Monday."

Premier Lloyd George, in delivering the allied ultimatum, charged that the Germans were being insufficiently taxed.

Strong approval of the speech, arraigning Germany for her war crimes and of the terms of the allies four-day ultimatum, was voiced by the British press.

Reported Found on
Table

(Special to the Daily)

HARTSELLE, March 4.—Hartselle was shocked this morning by the finding of the body of J. C. Jones, prominent local cotton buyer, in his office in the First National bank building. Mr. Jones had been dead several hours. His throat had been slashed. A note to the local undertaker gave directions regarding the disposition of the body. Mr. Jones also is reported to have left a note addressed to his family. His wife now is in Athens and a son is in the United States Navy, while a daughter is attending school at the University of Alabama.

The body was discovered this morning by Dr. Booth. Death apparently has resulted many hours previously. The body was immediately conveyed to the Coroner's undertaking establishment where it will await directions of the dead man's family who were immediately notified of the tragedy.

A razor, a knife and a glass of water were said to have been found on a table in the dead man's room. He was up and about all day yesterday and appeared to be in good spirits. Friends advanced the theory it was possible financial reverses was one of the contributing causes to the tragedy.

The "Build Now and Buy Now" campaign of the International Kiwanis was enthusiastically endorsed at a meeting of the Morgan Kiwanis club last night, when 200 business men of the Twin Cities and neighboring cities were guests of the club at a banquet in the rooms of the Albany chamber of commerce.

The plan of Kiwanis was outlined in detail by President Frank G. Cook and Secretary Edward Baird, while endorsement of the plan also was given by Robert L. Totten, George W. Yancey and Joseph Loveman, all of Birmingham, who delivered inspiring addresses.

Following out the motto of Kiwanis, "We build", Secretary Baird explained the campaign now being conducted in 450 cities by the international organization. He traced the periods of price inflation during and following the war and reviewed the reasons for the present curtailment of credits and their resultant effect on business conditions in America.

He urged a renewal of buying by the manufacturer for raw materials, by the merchants of finished products and by the consumer of all of the things he needs. His address was full of optimistic belief in the future.

Totten and Yancey Speak
Mr. Totten, consulting engineer with headquarters in the Magic City, complimented Albany and Decatur on their well paved streets and commended the campaign of Kiwanis to accelerate the wheels of industry in their return to normal prosperity.

He was followed by Mr. Yancey, attorney for the Alabama Retail Merchants Association, who carried still further the outline of the campaign.

WOODROW WILSON RETIRES TO PRIVATE LIFE

Dropping the official mantle which had adorned his masterful shoulders during eight soul-travelling years, President Wilson today became plain Woodrow Wilson, American citizen. Great as is the loss of official America, correspondingly great is the gain of American citizenship in this addition to its ranks.

Resent by enemies and betrayed by friends, Woodrow Wilson has battled courageously through the years for what he has believed to be right—and what the nation ultimately will conceive to be right—and today he turned over his office to his successor, but it was far from the Woodrow Wilson who went to Washington on March 4, eight years ago to become the chief executive of the world's greatest government.

Broken in body, this second Man or Sorrows is a casualty of the war. Carrying the problems of the world in his mind and the grief of the world in his heart proved far too great a task for any man and it made of President Wilson a physical wreck. He gave his all—and what does he receive in return? There are those who would take away from him even the gratitude of a nation well served, but they never can take from him his own knowledge of a task well done.

For the sake of their own selfish ends there are those who have assailed him; there are those who have mistreated him; there are those who have brought to their aid all of the nefarious schemes soiled minds concoct in an effort to discredit him before the American people, but even they have been unable to purge the record of the ideals Woodrow Wilson has left as his legacy to the nation. Says Omar:

The moving finger writes,
And having writ, moves on,
Nor all your piety nor wit,
Can call it back to cancel half a line,
Nor all your tears erase a word of it.

How true it is of this broken man who leaves his office today. The darkness of misrepresentation, for a time, may dim our vision of his greatness but dawn of a new and brighter day will reveal this characteristic in all of its splendor and posterity will find America acclaiming anew Woodrow Wilson—her greatest President.

SPRING DAYS ARE DAYS OF OPPORTUNITY

Every day presents a thousand and one opportunities, for the busy and the thrifty, but especially in the Spring season a time of opportunity. Every business, every industry and every individual in the county now has the chance to step forward and up along the course of constructive progress.

To begin with the farming interests. It is such an old saying as to be trite to say that no class is so independent as that of the farmers. No class can so quickly retrieve a loss. The farmers are closest in touch with Nature and can read her secret plans more easily, and appropriate her boundless wealth most readily. It is not often wise for any one person or any set of men to give advice to others. Especially should the farmers of the county know their business and what is to their best interests.

They have been fairly well instructed on the importance of diversification, and rotation of crops. The Cotton Association has preached early and late against the danger of planting too much cotton. If the farmers decide not to decrease their cotton acreage, in the face of all the facts that have been brought to their attention, they and all the rest of us may be expected to suffer the consequences. The proponents of good roads—the means by which the farmers and the consuming public are to be brought into closer touch, have much to encourage them, despite the recent opinion of the state supreme court against the new good roads bond issue law. Sentiment is growing stronger every day for a complete system of hard roads, that will connect every part of the county, with every other part. We should look upon Morgan county as if it were one immense corporate body, and every part of the whole, every individual and every corporation, should work in complete accord for the benefit of all the people as a whole.

No time is better for such cooperative effort than is the Spring season. As planting time comes on, there must of necessity be close business relations established between the farmers, the banks and the merchants. As in the past such relations have been pleasant and profitable to all concerned, so this year, they may be expected to be the same, and even more so, than ever before.

As matters now stand, unless there is a strong sense of responsibility felt by all classes to do and be their best, we cannot reasonably expect the large prosperity, during the year or at the close of the year, which is our due. The worker in every trade should do his best, at all times, to the end that material shall be saved, and the greatest efficiency possible, be realized. The merchants, the bankers, and all who serve the whole county community in other ways, should make special efforts to make their efforts felt for the greatest good to the greatest number.

And especially all classes should bend every energy in an effort to see what can be done to help and encourage the farmers of the county, since their labor and their products are at present not being appreciated in as large a measure as should be the case. As all nature is taking on new life, all the people should seek to outdo them in now.

THE TRUTH ABOUT RUSSIA

Little by little we are getting the truth about Russia. Emma Goldman was returned to Russia by United States authorities and found that nation's government was not at all what she had previously believed it was. Emma was currently reported to have a burning desire to set her feet on American soil again.

Lately initial intimations that certain Socialistic factions were not entirely satisfied with conditions existing in that country have been corroborated by the declaration of M. Schwartz, among others. Schwartz made his home in San Francisco, but went to Russia to attend a congress of the Third Internationale. His wife went with him, but she fell a victim of Russian discipline and died following a hunger strike in a Russian prison.

Speaking of the slight regard for human life existing in the Soviet prisons and describing how the guards visit the cells after midnight for their human sacrifices to a Godless system of government, Schwartz says:

"A bolshevik soldier walks into the crowded cell and in the instant silence calls out the names of the men, or women, who must die. In the jail where I was, they marched the prisoners down a stairway and into a courtyard. We could hear the volleys of the firing squads. Many men were called out for execution from my cell during those four months. Few of them knew why they had been condemned, but generally it was understood they were 'counter-revolutionists.' They were shot without trial."

The scathing attack of Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, on the Soviet because its opposition to the labor union movement is only accumulative evidence against the Reds, who stand indicted today before the whole world. The Soviet is a mere sham to cover the most diabolical autocracy in the history of the world.

AGED COUPLE MAKE MONEY

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cantrell, an aged couple who live in the Twelfth district of Rutherford county and who are known for their energy and thrift, had no trouble last year making money. These two people do all their work without help from any source, and what is raised on their little place is carried to market in a buggy. Mr. Cantrell is almost 72 years old and Mrs. Cantrell is less than a year younger than her husband.

They sold last year on the market the following products:

Milk $159.10, Cream $275.17, Eggs $120.99, Hens $4.85, Chickens $49.12, Irish potatoes $33.05, English peas $5.35, Mustard $6.05, Cabbage $10.40, Snap beans $35.70, Butter beans $32.90, Green peas $12.75, Turnips $1.40, Sweet potatoes $3.60, Tomatoes $20.00, Turnip greens $27.15, Grapes $2.55, Preserves $13.10, Apples $77.25, sweet potato plants $19.37—Total $839.85.

The milk and cream came from the cows, and the vegetables were grown on a 40-yard garden.

Mrs. Cantrell made during the year $41.50 sewing for other people, in addition to doing all her household work, including washing, ironing and scrubbing.

This is a record unequalled in the county, so far as we are advised, and it shows what people can do by practicing thrift and economy.—Home-Journal, Murfreesboro, Tenn.

This will be good news to our festive friends Julian, Williams, Fennell, Doster and Dugger, but our more sober sided members like Hon. Charlie Greer, and the Secretary will have to be content with rearing their eyes on the grace and beauty of Albany and lending their ex-voices to the vocal numbers on the program if there be any, if not Greer, the nightingale of the Alabama Press Association, may be counted on to start something in the vocal line any how.—James Hurd in Alapressa.

Buy Now Campaign of Kiwanis Clubs Get Endorsement

He declared the present unsettled business conditions were due largely to the state of mind of the buying public and not because there was any real reason for depression. He urged the renewal of buying by business men and by the consumer.

Loveman Address
Mr. Loveman, president of the Alabama Retail Merchants Association and a member of the firm of Loveman, Joseph and Loeb, delivered one of the most interesting addresses heard here in many years.

He endorsed the campaign of the club and took occasion to commend the organization for its great work to restore business to normal levels.

He declared that there is no real foundation for any depression and cited the increase of per capita wealth in the United States during the past five years as an indication of the fundamental prosperity of the nation.

Digressing from his subject long enough to discuss for a moment the work of the Retail Merchants Association, Mr. Loveman declared the time has arrived when merchants are becoming convinced that, instead of being independent of each other, they are really inter-dependent upon each other.

Trade At Home

He gave his endorsement of the trade at home policy and declared that no community would be a live community unless the merchants in that section are prosperous. "How do you expect your merchant to be prosperous if the citizenship does not give to the merchants their unequalled support."

Dwelling upon the same thought Mr. Loveman left the following word of advice for local merchants: "I am going to give you a piece of advice which may cost us money, but here it is. Buy less at a time, but buy more often. If you believe that the women of your community do not keep up with changing styles, you are mistaken. The average woman living in the smaller cities or in the country now know more about styles than did our mothers who resided in the large cities. By buying less and buying more frequently, you prevent yourself from becoming overstocked and you keep abreast of all changes in fashion." He urged the Golden Rule in the conduct of all business.

Wilson Praised

Mr. Loveman paid a glowing tribute to Woodrow Wilson and his hearers gave prolonged applause to the declaration that history would recognize Mr. Wilson as the greatest idealist in the history of the American Republic.

Had the League of Nations, or a similar association of nations been accepted, business conditions now would be on a normal basis, Mr. Loveman declared.

In his own address and in the other speeches of the evening, there was an undercurrent of optimism.

"The law and supply and demand finally will right conditions in this country, but let's speed up the hour by buying what we need now, whether we be professional men, business men, laboring men or capitalists." This was the thought left with the big audience by all the speakers.

Stunt Proves Popular

A "stunt", arranged under the supervision of the stunt committee, in which Miss Mary Daniel charmingly displayed the buying opportunities here and J. W. Clopton "lectured" on the uselessness of buying out of town, proved very popular with the audience, as did two musical numbers rendered by Miss Daniels.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. Sturdivant.

Male teachers in the one-teacher public schools of Alabama received on annual salary of $408 while female teachers in the same class of schools were paid $391 during the calendar year of 1920, according to averages made by T. E. Bonnor, statistician of the state department of education. This was based on an average school term of 113 days.

Male teachers in the six-teacher schools of the state received an average annual salary $1,112 while female teachers in this class of schools received an average annual salary of $550 during 1920. This was based on the average school term of 161 days.

Reports made to the state auditor by corporations which must bear the expense of the operation of the public service commission in the future have revealed interesting facts about earnings of public service corporations in Alabama during the past year.

The Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company reported that its gross earnings in this state during the year were $2,100,000, while the Western Union Telegraph Company gave its total gross earnings as $172,954.11. The Postal Telegraph Company reported gross earnings at $23,129.09, while the Pullman Company announced that its gross earnings in Alabama during the year were $102,436.59. These earnings were on intrastate business (business between points in Alabama) and do not include earnings on business between points in this state and other states.

Telephones Out as Cable is Burned

Three hundred telephones were put out of commission this morning by a blaze which badly damaged a barn on the property of the Royer home, between Jackson and Sherman streets on Fourth avenue, and burned two cables of the Southern Bell Telephone company. Workmen immediately began repairing the damage.

Flames slightly damaged the home of Sam Cross, 208 Fourth Avenue West, this morning shortly before 11 o'clock.

Among the number of phones put out of commission were the ones used by Daily society reporters. Society news in this issue is curtailed on that account.

AUDIENCE HERE
"Faust," sung in plain English as sweetly as it might have been sung in any foreign language, charmed last night's audience at the Grand when presented by the English Opera Company, and repeated applause bespoke the sentiment of the hearers.

That the two great opera companies of the country have no monopoly on opera talent was evidenced by the talent displayed in last night's production, Bianca Randall, a native of Alabama, and Joseph Sheehan, starred in the opera.

The company is to appear at the Grand again tonight. Greenville News.

MRS. C. J. LUMPKIN ENTERTAINED AT DINNER

Mrs. J. H. Calvin was a charming dinner hostess last evening when she complimented her house guest, Mrs. C. J. Lumpkin of Carlinville, Ill., at the Lyons. This hostess selected a color motif of yellow and white, which she carried out in silver baskets of jonquils and lighted yellow shaded tapers in silver candle sticks. Hand painted cards marked the places for twenty, and an elaborately planned dinner was served in six courses. Mrs. Lumpkin was handsomely gowned in black georgette and wore a black picture hat. Mrs. Calvin's guests were: Mrs. C. J. Lumpkin, Mrs. Ball, Mrs. A. J. Harris, Mrs. R. W. Cowart, Mrs. A. A. Jones, Mrs. E. P. Calvin, Mrs. W. C. Bailey, Mrs. L. A. Neill, Mrs. J. D. Wyker, Mrs. Hatchett, Mrs. J. W. Cunningham, Mrs. Lacey, Mrs. J. T. Jones, Mrs. W. M. Murray, Mrs. O. Kyle, Mrs. E. W. Godbey, Mrs. L. B. Wyatt, Mrs. W. E. Crawford and Mrs. Francis.

MRS. HALL HOSTESS TO CLUB

The Thursday afternoon Bridge club was entertained at the home of Mrs. W. N. Hall yesterday afternoon. The house was attractively decorated for the occasion with spring flowers. The club prize, a hand-painted plate was given to Mrs. H. B. Williams. Mrs. E. P. Calvin captured the attractive guest trophy. Guests included in this hospitality were: Mrs. E. P. Calvin, Mrs. Russell Green, Mrs. Chas. Rush, Mrs. A. B. Codrington. Following the game a salad course was served.

J. D. Roberts, retired Round House foreman, is critically ill at his home in West Decatur.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Lumpkin, of Carlinville, Ill., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Calvin. Mr. Lumpkin is owner and editor of the Carlinville Herald, and is enroute to St. Augustine, Fla., to attend the National Editorial Association.

The Junior Music Study club meeting which was to be held Saturday afternoon with Miss Marjorie Pointer and Miss Marjorie Broadus as joint hostesses, has been postponed until Saturday of next week March 12, when the club will meet with Miss Pointer at the home of her parents, 609 Perry street.

Y. P. M. S.

The Y. P. M. S. of the Central M. E. Church Albany held their regular business meeting Wednesday afternoon with Miss Katherine Chunn. An interesting feature was the report given by Mrs. Robert Sittason from the conference at Sylacauga, and the pennant showing that the Albany young people were on the honor roll for 1920. At the conclusion of the business, a salad course was served.

First English Coin.
It is a common error to suppose that the first English coin was made of copper. It was made of gold, about A. D. 460, and is believed to have been struck in celebration of the victory of Scythia, the overlord of the Teutonic chiefs in southern Britain, over the Saxon invaders.

WHERE BUNGLER DOES HARM

Always Makes a Mess of His Own Life and Too Frequently the Lives of Others.

Bunglers are frequently talkers above their ability to perform. To be sure they want to be rated well among their friends and frequently go to the limit in telling others what they are going to do. That's how George got into the hospital. It seems George and another colored chap did the gardening on a certain man's estate in the Middle West. One morning George didn't turn up. The master went to Sam and said: "Sam, where's George?" "In de hospital, sah." "In the hospital; how did that happen?" "Well, you see," replied Sam. "George is married and he's been telling me for a long time as how he's goin' to lick his wife, 'cause her naggin' and yistiddy she done hear him at it. Dat's all." And how many there are like him. They are going to turn the world upside down until they meet face to face with the facts.

After the bunglers get in their work it's impossible for anyone else to make a good job of it. They take perfectly good reputations and leave them pretty poor examples of what is good. No wood butcher ever made a bigger mess of good lumber than has many a bungler made of other people's lives. And these artists even hangle up their own lives. They get their heads full of notions that lead to folly. Like guns, they go off half-cocked and the damage can never be repaired. Careless of the facts, they frequently make assertions that are far from true and act according to what you expect of such creatures. Every effort added seems to add to the confusion.—Grit.

RIDE ON SUNBEAM EXPRESS

Journey That Would Be Remarkable for Speed and for Wonders
Seen Along the Way.

Edille Belot, the French astronomer, suggests that, if one were able to straddle a light ray (which travels 186,000 miles a second) and thus voyage through space, observations along the route would be exceedingly interesting.

It would take only a little more than a second to reach the moon and in 4 minutes and 20 seconds one would arrive at the planet Mars. One would get as far as Jupiter in 35 minutes, to Saturn in 79 minutes, to Uranus in 2 1/2 hours and to Neptune in 4 hours. On the way one would come across a great many comets without tails—nebulous bodies of spherical shape which are rarely seen from the earth.

It would take two years to get outside the sphere of the sun's attraction, and by that time our orb of day would look like nothing more important than a big star.

The star-nearest to us, Alpha Centauri, would meanwhile be looming up, and the wayfarer through space might expect to arrive there in a little more than four years. By this time he would have journeyed 24,000,000,000 miles.

MUSCLE SHOALS IS LOST TEMPORARILY

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, March 4.—All efforts to have Congress provide at this session appropriation for the further development of the Muscle Shoals, Alabama nitrate plant, have failed.

The Senate conferees on the sundry civil appropriations bill early today receded from the stand of the Senate for a $10,000,000 appropriation for the plant and permitted it to be stricken from the bill.

The Senate adopted the conference report and the House, at 2 o'clock this morning, concurred. The Republican leaders in the House believed that the failure of the Muscle Shoals item to pass at this session would put an end to its consideration for all time. Last night by a vote of 207 to 144 the House for the second time refused to concur in the Senate amendment.

Corporal Bunch Is Laid to Rest

The body of Corporal James W. Bunch, who died in France, now rests under American soil. The following from the Mobile Register will be of much interest to the many friends of the dead soldier in the Twin Cities:

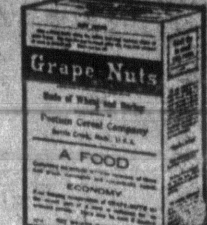

Corporal James W. Bunch. The funeral of Corporal James W. Bunch of Whistler, who died of pneumonia in November, 1918, in France, while serving in the world war, took place Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock from the undertaking parlors of Dixon & McKay. Rev. J. F. Plummer, of the Episcopal church, conducted the service. The funeral was attended by a delegation of members of Lamar V. McLeod Post, American Legion. The burial was in the National cemetery.

Corporal Bunch, before his entrance into the army, was with the E. C. Payne Lumber company here and was held in high esteem by his employers and was beloved by a wide circle of friends in Albany and Decatur where he had made his home for many years.

Leaning on Cane Woodrow Wilson Goes to Capitol

The new President pledged an administration that will stand foursquare on the principles of the Republic as laid down by its founders; he promised his administration will work unceasingly for the furtherance of America's greatness in world affairs, and for the expansion of her commerce and influence—all without deviating from Washington's policy of "no entangling alliances" with foreign powers.

The League of Nations, paramount issue of the campaign, was not mentioned specifically by the new President, but concerning the foreign policy of his administration, he had this to say: "We seek no part in directing the destinies of the old world. We do not mean to be entangled. America can be a party to no permanent military alliance."

Mandate Plain

The mandate of the people on November 2 in this respect was plain it was asserted by the new President. This, however, must not be taken to mean, President Harding said, that America is going to adopt a policy of aloofness and isolation in world matters. He interpreted the spirit of America as ready and eager to participate and is necessary to initiate steps toward approximate disarmament and a better understanding among nations.

President Harding indicated plainly that his administration will turn a cold shoulder to those who seek to have America cancel the $10,000,000, 0/0 of debts owed her by European nations.

One of the most immediate tasks confronting the nation, President Harding declared, is to "put our own public household in order," reduce expenditures, lop off waste and affect a general tightening up on the Federal purse strings.

The new President made a plea for a better understanding between labor and capital. "I had rather," he said, "submit our industrial controversies to the conference table in advance, than to a settlement table after conflict and suffering."

Tariff Needed

The need for a protective tariff to keep out a flood of cheap foreign goods, which would choke American industries, is greater today than ever before, the new President asserted.

Above all else, the President pledged his administration to be one of service. "I have taken the solemn oath of office on that passage of Holy Writ wherein it is asked: 'What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?' This, I pledge; to God and country," he concluded.

Inaugural Day—the day on which Ohio sent the seventh of her sons into the White House—dawned clear and cold.

Harding Weather

It was typical Harding weather in its lack of rain or other disagreeable features. Not once during the long campaign at Marion did rain fall or a front porch delegation, and friends of the new President were gleeful at the continuance of Harding luck.

It was strange Inauguration Day for Washington. In other year crowds moved restlessly up and down the street all night long, and dawn found many of them tramping sleepily at points of vantage along Pennsylvania avenue to view the grand parade of dignitaries.

This morning a machine gun could have swept the length and breadth of the avenue with but few casualties.

There was something coldly and distinctly business-like about today's inaugural. Gone were the pomp and panoply and display of other years with their extravagant decorations, crashing bands, marching military and horse-drawn carriages of state proudly bearing silk hatted and frock coated dignitaries in great parade. Today's event began to march with swift efficiency at 10:20 when half a dozen automobiles drew sharply up to the Willard hotel. They formed the entire parade of the Harding inaugural.

From the hotel the automobiles proceeded the few blocks to the White House and drew up before the great veranda that fronts the building. From the door emerged for the last time Woodrow Wilson, broken in health leaning on a cane, his face furrowed and lined and his hair silvered from his eight tumultuous years as chief executive.

A curious crowd stood outside the barred fence surrounding the White House grounds of view the final passing of Woodrow Wilson from the great white mansion from which he has at times swayed the world.

Hangs Like Pall

Hanging like a pall over the jollity and merry-making of the inaugural visitors was the death of Champ Clark, the great Democratic leader, who almost was President.

The cheers and noises with which the crowd welcomed the new President drifted down through the budding

CALVIN COOLIDGE NOW WIELDS GAVEL

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts, took office as Vice President of the United States today and Thomas Marshall, of Indiana, relinquished that office, both voicing the hope their nation may follow the precepts of its founders.

Calvin Coolidge, tall, austere and somewhat shy New Englander, stood on the rostrum of the United States Senate, took the oath of office and expressed the hope that the vision of past generations may more and more be reality of generations yet to come.

Thomas Riley Marshall, frail, greyed and with a tinge of regret in his voice, delivered his valedictory. "I may have failed but I have tried to keep the faith," Mr. Marshall said in farewell.

Marshall administered the oath of office to his successor and stepped out of the picture—a private citizen.

Calvin Coolidge took up the little ivory gavel and called the Senate to order and addressed the body briefly.

WILSON FAILS TO WITNESS CEREMONY

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
L. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 4. — The strain of inaugural proved great today for Woodrow Wilson and he retired to his new home on F. street without witnessing the inauguration of his successor.

Mr. Wilson's effort was a game one. His strain was apparent to all who saw his drawn face and limping figure as he rode to the capital with his successor, signed some last minute bills, allowed others to die by a pocket veto, and then, very tired and much moved, he was assisted to his car and rode alone down the long avenue while the attention of thousands outside the capital was riveted on the new President.

DEATH OF CHILD OF MR. AND MR. C. H. GOFORTH

Roy Goforth, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Goforth, died at Phil Campbell, Ala., on February 26, following a brief illness. The remains were laid to rest at the Phil Campbell cemetery, followed by many sorrowing friends of the family.

rees in the capital grounds and penetrated faintly into the dim room where death had claimed a great man.

The little procession moved swiftly down the passage way into broad Pennsylvania Avenue. For some the President was the cynosure of eyes; for others it was the new President who held their interest.

President Wilson walked from the White House unaided but as he reached the steps, leading to the motor car, he stopped for a brief instant and turned about looking into the house.

Secret service men aided the President, lifting his feet to the running board of the car. Seated in the car he out-going President turned and lifted his hat to the little group of White House attaches who were gathered there.

Cavalry in Parade

The Presidential party reached the capital at 11:15 a. m., proceeded by three troops of cavalry moving at a brisk trot. The cavalymen rode with drawn sabers and their standards streamed in the breeze.

A rolling chair had been provided for the President at the capitol entrance, but he declined it and aided only by his cane made his way to the President's room.

President Wilson left the capitol before the exercises in the Senate started. After disposing of last minute legislation he left the President's room and was assisted down the stairs and into his car. He drove back down the avenue to his new home unattended except by secretary service men.

Harding Applauded. President-elect Harding entered the Senate chamber at 12:18. He was greeted with tumultuous applause from the floor and gallery. Vice President Coolidge was sworn in at 12:02, the oath being administered by Vice President Marshall.

When Marshall had finished his address, he turned and bowed to his successor and then the new Vice President faced the crowded floor and delivered his short, terse speech in a clear voice.

When it had ended Vice President Marshall banged his gavel and officially closed the 66th congress.

At 1:15 the President-elect reached the stand amid a blare of music and applause of the crowd. Mrs. Harding and Mrs. Coolidge took up positions at his right. A minute after Harding's arrival, Chief Justice White came slowly down the aisle and stood by the rail.

President Harding took the oath of office at 1:17.

FARMERS, FAVORED BY WEATHER, PUT IN EARLY CROPS

Special to The Daily

MOULTON, March 4.—The beautiful weather of the past few weeks is giving farmers a great opportunity to start crops on time this year; every advantage is being taken of this; in many sections of the county daily calls are being made upon the county demonstration agent, J. P. Yarbrough, Moulton, for advice and assistance in caring for orchards or in terracing land. Tuesday of this week Mr. Yarbrough was engaged in terrace work at Landersville, six miles west of Moulton, and at the same time gave lessons in terracing to the sixth and seventh grade pupils of the Landersville school.

The agent also is busily engaged in securing from the teachers of the county the names of boys and girls who may be interested in the Corn Club and the Pig Club work. He gave a talk and instructions to the pupils of the Young's school Tuesday afternoon of this week and secured members for the club work there.

Deputy Sheriff Bates was sent with a boy from Moulton, to the Boys' Industrial School at East Lake, Birmingham, Wednesday; the boy was sent for alleged violation of the Compulsory Attendance School law. As a rule, the attendance law is being complied with throughout the county with but few infractions; three hundred or more cautionary notices have been sent to parents in the course of the session since last November and allowed by letters from the office of most of all these notices have been the county superintendent of education.

Personal investigations have been made of a large number of the cases of non-enrollment, irregularities, etc., reported by the teachers with the result that practically all instances where clothing, books, or other necessities have been required for school attendance, have had direct attention either from the Sunday schools of Moulton, or from the Red Cross Home service.

Announcements that there will be a Field Day for the Lawrence County High School and rural schools near Moulton, are being made this week by the principal of the school, A. B. Murphree. The exercises are to be held Saturday, March 19, on the high school grounds at Moulton. Numerous prizes are offered for various contests and stunts. Exhibits of work done in the public schools are to be displayed in the high school building. Another Field Day for the Northwest part of the county is to be held on Friday, March 18, at Town Creek, on the school grounds at that place. The Town Creek school is now an accredited high school and the leading school in that part of the county.

Two American Subs on Rocks

(International News Service) NEW BEDFORD, Mass., March 4.—Two American submarines were on the rocks off Southern New England's coast today. Word received here said coast guardsmen had taken off ten men of the crew of 33 from the O-1, ashore off Fishers' Island. The O-8 was fast on a ledge in Buzzard's Bay. An unsuccessful attempt was made by the United States revenue cutter Acushnet to drag the submersible from the ledge.

Another attempt will be made at high tide this afternoon. Both submarines were bound for New London, Conn., from Boston.

Locals Win First Game of Season

The High School diamond on yesterday was the scene of the first baseball contest of the 1921 season when representatives of Austinville High School, disappointed at the cancellation of a cage game with the "all stars" contracted to engage in a baseball contest with the locals, resulting in a 6 to 0 victory for Albany.

It was the school's second day of practice and the visitors first attempt at playing this season. Notable features of the game were the clean fielding and weak hitting. Only a small number of the local first team was in action, since the game was not begun until 4:30 p. m.

Ezell, on the mound for Albany, pitched his usually good brand of ball and only in the fourth was Austinville within scoring distance. In this frame, with two men on bases and nobody out, Ezell struck out two men, while number three popped a weak fly.

The team lined up as follows:

Albany	Austinville
Peterson, c	Briscoe, c
Ezell, p	E. Weaver, p
Pepper, 1st b	Brown, 1st b

MANY FINED

The Albany police court this morning disposed of nine cases. Three were charged with drunkenness, three with disorderly conduct, two with fighting and one was held on a gaming charge.

Official Business Takes Precedence Over Celebration

cession lasted fourteen days, and relays of coaches and saddle horse were necessary for his long drive. President Harding was whisked to the Capitol in a very few minutes in the most modern of motor vehicles.

The shadows of other inaugurations however over Washington today run the gamut of variety, from the fourteen-day trip of George Washington and the heavily guarded inauguration of Abraham Lincoln to the quiet and unostentatious proceedings of today.

Spring had barely banished the ice on the Potomac River and the roads were still muddy from the thawing frosts, when George Washington left Mount Vernon on April 16, 1789 in a horse-drawn carriage for New York to take the oath of office. The first President had proceeded no farther than Georgetown—then a thriving port and now a residential section of Washington—when he was met by a cavalcade. For the next fourteen days his drive was a procession of honor with celebrations all along the route as he proceeded. On April 30, 1789 the guns boomed at Fort George in New York Harbor and the first inauguration was under way. The streets of New York were thronged as George Washington, in a stage coach, preceded by military bodies and dignified delegations, drove to the Federal Building and took the oath of office. The guns boomed forth again and the church bells pealed as Washington, attired in dark brown broadcloth and properly bewigged, drove back to the President mansion.

John Adams, second President, set a new fashion when he was inaugurated at Philadelphia. Street parade and display were absolutely lacking when he was inducted into office, and the meagre newspaper accounts of the ceremony indicate that there was little enthusiasm as Adams was inaugurated.

Jefferson Rode Horse

Thomas Jefferson's inauguration is the subject of historical controversy. John Sharp Williams, Senator from Mississippi, and an authority on the life of Jefferson, declares that Jefferson rode to the Capitol, tied his horse to a hitching post, was inaugurated, and then went back to his boarding house and took his usual place at the dinner table. Other historians declare that Jefferson was escorted to the Capitol by a troop of militia. All agree, however, that Jefferson set his mind against all display and counter his inauguration as a matter of but little import. At least, it is certain that Jefferson was not escorted by the outgoing President, for history records that John Adams drove away from Washington during the night in order that he might not see or hear the Jefferson inaugural.

Madison's Big Celebration

James Madison did not take his cue from Jefferson, for his inauguration was the signal for a great celebration and a parade in which large numbers of Federal troops participated. Nine companies militia, a considerable force for that time, escorted President Madison and he was ushered into the Senate chamber to take the oath by a Senatorial committee and the members of the Cabinet. In the evening President Madison and ex-President Jefferson both attended an inaugural ball.

James Monroe went to the Capitol to be sworn in surrounded by a cavalcade of prominent citizens, and upon his arrival at the Capitol he was met by the Marine Corps and several other military companies. After his inauguration he gave a huge public reception, which set a mark for social functions of that day, and in the evening he attended an inaugural ball.

John Quincy Adams failed to follow his father's example, for his inauguration led the way for real inaugural celebrations. The inauguration parade was the greatest display that the nation had ever seen up to that time, and the social functions which followed were most elaborate. The guest of honor was John Adams, the second President of the United States and the father of John Quincy Adams.

John Had Old Guard

When Andrew Jackson took office it was in the midst of a bitter partisan struggle. John Quincy Adams took a long horseback ride, rather than to attend the inaugural and the only uniformed military troop available refused to escort Jackson and he finally went to the Capitol under the escort of an old guard of revolutionary veterans, hastily called into service. Jackson made an impression, however, on the crowd that gathered to hear him make his inaugural address on the Capitol portico, which was used for the first time for that purpose. At the close of his address he was the centre of a storm of admirers, and going into their midst he held an informal reception. The crowds tagged along, cheering wildly as he returned to the White House. At the White House the crowd became a mob and a wild through the mansion, causing great damage to the furnishings.

Martin Van Buren's inauguration brought great crowds to Washington and the carnival spirit prevailed. Van Buren rode to the Capitol in a state coach made from the original timber of the figure Constitution, drawn by four horses elaborately bedecked with grass-mounted harness.

Harrison Rode White Charger

Preparations for a great parade were made for William Henry Harrison and the Whigs turned out in great strength. President Harrison refused to ride to the Capitol in state, however, but mounted his favorite saddle horse, a white charger, and centered down Pennsylvania avenue bareheaded and acknowledging the plaudits of the huge crowds that wanted to pay their respects to "Old Tippecanoe."

James K. Polk rode at the head of a great parade in his inaugural procession, through a heavy rain and a sea of mud.

Zachary Taylor was known as "Old Rough and Ready" and his inauguration seemed to fit that characterization, for it was the noisiest celebration that staid old Washington had ever witnessed. General Taylor laid away his favorite military costume, however, and rode in a carriage drawn by four gray horses to the Capitol at the head of an enthusiastic noise-reducing parade.

Slush filled the streets when Franklin Pierce fell into line with his predecessors and headed an inaugural parade.

James Buchanan's inauguration was the signal for a great social celebration. Buchanan was a bachelor.

Lincoln Carefully Guarded

Abraham Lincoln's inauguration was in the midst of an armed camp. Attempts on his life were predicted. Riflemen were on every roof along the line of march, a cavalry squad guarded Lincoln and troops were stationed at the Capitol ready to check a riot. Lincoln took the oath of office in a clutter of masonry, for the Capitol was then being remodelled and the famous dome under construction. President Lincoln failed to attend the inaugural ball, much to the disappointment of Washington society.

Grant's Pompous Parade

The height of pomp and ceremony was attained when U. S. Grant became President. Troops from every section of the country formed a great parade and the town took on the aspect of a carnival. A great inaugural followed in the evening and for days and days Washington and the nation celebrated. It was anything but a dry celebration, according to historians.

Grant appears to have set the standard, for from his inauguration on down, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, Cleveland, Harrison, McKinley, Roosevelt Taft and Wilson have all participated in pompous processions as they took office.

There have been more simple inaugurations than this today, for Theodore Roosevelt was quietly sworn in at a private residence after the death of William McKinley. There have been far more elaborate inaugurations than this today. But President Harding seems to have reached a happy medium, dignified and solemn, impressive and interesting, yet lacking utterly in the carnival spirit, the inaugural today marks the progress to the nation—from George Washington's coach and four, Jefferson's saddle horse and Zachary Taylor's noted march, to the whirling drive in a modern motor to the Capitol and the door back to the White House.

For the first time official business appears to have taken precedent over celebration.

France's wine output for 1920 was about twenty per cent greater than that of 1919.

The Instrument Chosen By The Greatest Artists

The most cherished possession of the great singers and instrumentalists is their art, and their keenest desire is that under all circumstances they shall be heard at their best. It is in appreciation of this fact that the greatest artists of this generation have become Victor artists, and their unqualified endorsement of the Victrola is the most conclusive evidence of its artistic superiority.

The Quality of Dainty is a bargain

Ordinary flour is like whole milk; Dainty Flour is like cream—rich, Jersey milk. It is only the white centers of nothing but the very finest soft winter wheat.

The many housewives who use Dainty Flour show good, sound business judgment. They can see beyond its purchase price to its economy in the long run. The same high quality that makes Dainty cost more per sack than ordinary flour makes it absolutely dependable. It produces uniformly fine results without needless, expensive failures. Furthermore, Dainty requires less shortening.

This year millers are tempted to lower quality to reduce price. But we won't lower the quality of Dainty. You wouldn't want us to. It wouldn't be Dainty if we did. Besides, it would be false economy.

Dainty continues to be milled, as always, from only the white centers of nothing but the very finest soft winter wheat. It's like cream skimmed from rich, Jersey milk. You can count on the quality of Dainty today, tomorrow and a year from tomorrow.

COURT BATTLE IN WAKE OF FIGHT ON RATES FOR WATER

A court battle loomed today in wake of litigation started to prevent the Alabama Water company from cutting off the water supply at the house owned by A. D. Cohen, Sixth avenue, formerly the McCullough home.

Judge O. Kyle, shortly before noon, postponed until Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock the case involving contempt of court issues, arising out of the alleged failure of the water company to take cognizance of an order issued out of the Circuit court restraining the cutting off of the water supply to the residence temporarily and citing the company to appear in court late yesterday.

The litigation was started by Mr. Cohen several days ago and restraining papers were issued from the Circuit court. The amount involved is said to include a bill of $117 for the current quarter. Upon alleged failure of the company to appear in court Thursday afternoon, the new hearing was set for Friday morning.

Noted Lecturer Coming Monday

Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and a noted lecturer and author will be in Morgan Co. Monday, March 28th for three addresses. The first of these will be delivered at Hartsville Baptist Church at 11:00 A. M. Then he will come to Albany-Decatur for a conference to be held at Central Baptist Church at 4:00 P. M. At 7:30 P. M. he will again speak at Central Baptist Church.

Special interest is added to these addresses of Dr. Mullins as he has so recently returned from Europe where he was the special representative of the Southern Baptist Convention to the various Baptist bodies of that continent and will probably make a report of the conditions he found there.

MORAL LEADERSHIP WITHOUT ALLIANCE IS AMERICA'S GOAL

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, March 4. — President Harding's inaugural address, in part, follows:

"My countrymen: When one surveys the whole world about him after the great storm, noting the marks of destruction and yet rejoicing in the uprightness of the things which withstood it, if he is an American he breathes the clarified atmosphere with a strange mingling of regret and new hope. We have seen a world passion spend its fury, but we contemplate our republic unshaken, and hold our civilization secure. Liberty—liberty within the law—and civilization are inseparable, and though both were threatened we find them now secure; and there comes to Americans the profound assurance that our representative government is the highest expression and surest guaranty of both.

"Standing in this presence, mindful of the solemnity of this occasion, feeling the emotion which no one may now until he senses the great weight of responsibility for himself, I must utter my belief in the divine inspiration of the founding fathers. Surely here must have been God's intent in the making of this new work republic. Ours is an organic law which had at one ambiguity, and we saw that faced in a baptism of sacrifice and blood, with union maintained, the nation supreme and its concord surviving. We have seen the world rivet its hopeful gaze on the great truths in which the founders wrought. We have seen civil, human and religious liberty verified and glorified. In the beginning the old world scoffed at our experiments; today our foundations of political and social belief stand unshaken, a precious inheritance to ourselves, an inspiring example of freedom and civilization to all mankind. Let us express renewed and strengthened devotion in grateful reverence for the immortal beginning, and utter our confidence in the supreme fulfillment.

Record of Progress

"The record of progress of our republic, materially and spiritually in itself proves the wisdom of the inherited policy of non-involvement in old world affairs. Confident of our ability to work out our own destiny, and jealously guarding our right to do so, we seek no part in directing the destinies of the old world. We do not mean to be entangled. We will accept no responsibility except as our own conscience and judgement, in each instance may determine.

"Our eyes never will be blind to a developing menace, our ears never deaf to the call of civilization. We recognize the new order in the world, with the closer contacts which progress has wrought. We sense the call of the human heart for fellowship, fraternity and cooperation.

No Military Alliance

"We drove friendship and harbor no hate. But America, our America, the America builded on the foundation laid by the inspired fathers can be a party to no permanent military alliance. It can enter into no political commitments, nor assume any economic obligations which will subject our decisions to any other than our own authority.

"I am sure our own people will not misunderstand, nor will the world misconstrue. We have no thought to impede the paths to closer relationship. We wish to promote understanding. We want to do our part in making offensive warfare so hateful that governments and the peoples who resort to it must prove the righteousness of their cause or stand as outlaws before the bar of civilization.

Ready to Associate

"We are ready to associate ourselves with the nations of the world great and small for confidence, for counsel; to seek the expressed views of world opinion; to recommend a way to approximate disarmament and relieve the crushing burdens of military and naval establishments.

"We elect to participate in suggesting plans for mediation, conciliation and arbitration and would join in that expressed conscience of progress which seeks to clarify and write the laws of international relationship, and establish a world court for the disposition of such justifiable questions as nations are agreed to submit thereto. In expressing aspirations, seeking practical plans, in translating humanity's new concept of righteousness and justice and its hatred of war into recommended action we are ready most heartily to unite, but every commitment must be made in the exercise of our national sovereignty. Since freedom impelled and independence inspired, and nationality exalted, a world super-government is contrary to everything we cherish and can have no sanction by our republic. This is not selfishness, it is sanctity. It is not aloofness, it is security. It is not suspicion of ours, it is patriotic adherence to the things which made us what we are.

"Today, better than ever before we know the aspirations of humankind and share them. We have come to a new realization of our place in the world and a new appraisal of our nation by the world.

"Our supreme task is the resumption of our onward normal way. Reconstruction, readjustment, restoration—all these must follow. I would like to hasten them. If it will lighten the spirit and add to the resolution with which we take up the task let me repeat for our nation, we shall give no people just cause to make war upon us, we hold no national prejudices, we entertain no spirit of revenge, we do not hate, we do not covet, we dream of no conquest nor boast of armed prowess.

"We can reduce the abnormal expenditures, and we will. We can strike at war taxation, and we must. We must face the grim necessity with full knowledge that the task is to be solved, and we must proceed with a full realization that no statute enacted by man can repeal the inexorable laws of nature. Our most dangerous tendency is to expect too much of government, and at the same time do for it too little.

"We contemplate the immediate task of putting our public household in order. We need a rigid and yet safe economy, combined with fiscal justice, and it must be attended by individual prudence, and thrift, which are so essential to this trying hour and reassuring for the future.

"The forward course of the business cycle is unmistakable. Peoples are turning from destruction to production. Industry has sensed the changed order and our own people are turning to resume their normal, onward way. The call is for productive America to go on. I know that congress and the administration will favor every wise government policy to aid the resumption and encourage continued progress.
